DEL STRAIN

Del plays all the top clubs in this country and others and has a few television credits to his name.
He was a Finalist in five major Comps in his first two years and since then has progressed to spots at The Comedy Cafe, Jongleurs, The Glee, Banana Cabaret, Kings Head, The Stand, and many more gigs all over the UK bringing his take on Britain 2008 warts and all. As well as writing Sketchs for itv and the BBC 1 Scotland Karen Dunbar Show he has made tv and radio appearances from X-FM and Talksport to Sky Poker and the Itv 1 5:O'clock show doing his Stand Up and will be Playing Poker as a Comedian through 2008 on Sky as well as giging all over the UK and hopefully broadening his profile and getting more work on the circuit and on Tv and Radio.
Del can also act and has done Shakespeare at The Young Vic and also has made a Film and Adverts for the Nissan Navara and also a Braun Shaving advertising Campaign but is concentrating on the Comedy and Writing for the moment.

NICK HODDER

In a career spanning twelve years, Nick hasn't held down 29 jobs. So like so many of his unemployable friends, he turned comedy.

Nick has written a stage show, produced and directed short comedy films, written sketch comedy for Radio 5, and produced some award winning content for BBC Three, winning BBC New Talent's 'Funny Hunt'.

Nick's short film called Gloves, won the BBC Big Screen Award for 'Best Comedy'. Hand picked as the winner by the BBC Film Critic, Mark Kermode.

In 2006 Nick made the move into Stand-Up comedy. His weird material and eccentric performances have won him praise from his peers and several competitions including the 'HMV Yeovil Comedy Contest', and 'Should I stay, or Should I Go?'
